Course Descriptions

SEQRA Basics for Local Officials: This course provides an introduction to the fundamentals of applying the State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA) to local government decisions. It will include an overview of the State Environmental Quality Review (SEQR) process, including establishing a lead agency, classifying an action, and making a determination of significance. It will also include an overview of tools to assist you in the SEQR process, including the SEQR Handbook, Environmental Assessment Form (EAF) Workbook, and available online mapping tools. 1 hour credit recommended

Planning for Solar Energy: Solar power is becoming increasingly popular. Solar installations can range from small rooftop panels to large solar “farms” that generate megawatts of power. Learn about the land use and zoning issues associated with various types of solar power. Through carefully planning we can mitigate the impacts of solar power installations and encourage appropriate solar development in our communities. 1 hour credit recommended
