RE: Serviceability Request

Dear Mr. Beavers:

YOP. 216.WWW

Charter Communication, Inc. ("Charter") has reviewed your recent correspondence. We appreciate your interest in subscribing to our services. However, we reaffirm the information previously provided by our representatives – your home is not serviceable by Charter at this time.

Our Field Operations Team completed another site survey to confirm this determination. Your residence is in the Town of Windsor, New York, and Charter does not have a franchise agreement with the Town of Windsor. As such, we do not have the authorization to provide you with our service.

If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me in writing at the address at the bottom of this letter.

Sincerely,

The Importance Of Judicial Watch Election Law Efforts

By Tom Fitton

JUDICIAL WATCH

Widespread voting anomalies that occurred on Election Day, and continued for days after, raised significant legal and constitutional concerns, and President Trump attempted to use every legal and constitutional remedy to ensure that the American people could trust the results.

Meanwhile, the media, including social media platforms like Twitter and Facebook, were inaccurately labeling Biden as President-elect, despite the fact that President Trump had not conceded, and no official sources had certified any election results. Federal law and the Constitution limit official sources to state officials, the Electoral College and, ultimately, Congress. Thankfully, the Constitution does not give the media the ability to declare the winner of a presidential election.

The Left changed how our elections were conducted — and it resulted in a tsunami of mail-in ballots that the evidence shows were unlawfully handled and counted in a way that is at odds with the law. The structural integrity of the elections in key states fell under Leftist machinations — raising serious questions about the validity of reported results for Joe Biden. There is strong evidence, incontrovertible in some instances, that virtually every “battle-ground” state’s laws were violated in the handling and counting of mail-in ballots.

We have long warned of the chaos and increased risk of fraud from recklessly mailing out 100 million ballots and ballot applications. Our most recent research (available at: <http://jwatch.us/voter-registration>) published in September revealed that 353 U.S. counties had 1.8 million more registered voters than eligible voting-age citizens. In other words, the registration rates of those counties exceeded 100% of eligible voters. The study collected the most recent registration data posted online by the states themselves. This data was then compared to the Census Bureau’s most recent five-year population estimates, gathered by the American Community Survey (ACS) from 2014 through 2018. ACS surveys are sent to 3.5 million addresses each month, and its five-year estimates are considered to be the most reliable estimates outside of the decennial census.

It is not normal for multiple states to be counting presidential votes for days after Election Day, which raised significant concerns about the validity of post-election counts. Federal law seems clear that the presidential contest is supposed to be decided by Election Day. For example, 3 U.S. Code § 1 states:

The electors of President and Vice President shall be appointed, in each State, on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, in every fourth year succeeding every election of a President and Vice President.

On Election Day, President Trump had the votes to win the presidency. These vote totals were changed, giving Joe Biden the margin of victory in a significant number of swing states due to unprecedented and extraordinary vote counting after Election Day. It is clear that had only those votes arriving in the count-
